PURPOSE AND OBJECTIVES

PURPOSE: This course is designed to provide the practicing colon and rectal surgeon with updates on important aspects of caring for patients with colon and rectal diseases. Emphasis is placed on a broad range of topics to address the needs of a diversified group of attendees.

OBJECTIVES: At the end of this program, the participant should be able to:

- Describe new methods to treat anal warts
- Explain an alternate approach for mobilizing the splenic flexure in clinical practice
- Discuss the most common misunderstandings in the diagnosis and treatment of hemorrhoids for patients and physicians
- Review new therapeutic modalities for treatment of fecal incontinence
- Discuss the role of laparoscopic and robotic surgery for rectal and colon cancer
- Review the use of biologic agents for treatment of inflammatory bowel disease and associated risks relative to surgery
- Discuss technical differences between single incision and conventional laparoscopic colectomy
- Describe the technique of laparoscopic washout
- Discuss management issues in patients with poorly differentiated neuroendocrine carcinomas of the rectum
- Recognize current evidence-based trends for perioperative patient management
- Explain new approaches regarding bowel prep, pain management, nutritional support, and pharmacological measures that may lead to decreased morbidity and earlier discharge
- Describe how pre-operative staging is now an essential factor in the multidisciplinary management of rectal cancer
