Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology and Health Sciences Continuing Education
PURPOSE: The conference will provide practitioners with the most recent information that will enhance knowledge, skills, and performance related to the principles and practice of Obstetrics and Gynecology. It will also review and update the following clinical issues: Polycystic Ovary Syndrome (PCOS), gestational diabetes screening, uterine anomalies and hereditary gynecologic cancers.

OBJECTIVES: At the end of this program, the participant should be able to:
- Explore the functions and dysfunctions of the female sexual response and discuss current information on education, support, products and other resources for sexual health
- Discuss the pathogenesis and etiology of Polycystic Ovary Syndrome (PCOS), the clinical manifestations, diagnosis and treatment
- Assess the minimally invasive robot-assisted surgery for complex hysterectomies and other gynecologic procedures
- Describe new methods of collection and processing of specimens for pap smears and recommend management schemes for all grades of cervical cytology
- Explain the screening and diagnostic tests for gestational diabetes and discuss new criteria and recommendations to the gestational diabetes screening guidelines
- Identify the causes and types of common obstetrical problems and the treatment and management of the septate uterus.
- Discuss the epidemiologic, biological, clinical issues and risk prevention management associated with hereditary gynecologic cancers
- Describe the benefits of prenatal screening and diagnostic tests performed on body tissues or fluids to determine if a person has a genetic disorder or a predisposition to develop a genetic problem
- Discuss recent advances in newborn infant nutrition with special emphasis on concepts and methods to include the use of breast milk, timing of feeding, intravenous alimentation and milk protein allergy or intolerance
- Differentiate the risks and benefits of various methods and strategies used in the prevention of pre-mature birth and dispel myths impacting clinical practice
