PROGRAM AND OBJECTIVES

PURPOSE: The symposium will provide practitioners with clinically relevant information and state-of-the-art treatment options on cardiovascular diseases that will enhance knowledge and performance and promote patient care. These topics will address practice gaps and integrate evidence-based information.

CONFERENCE OBJECTIVES: The participant should be able to:
- Relate the most significant advances in cardiovascular medicine during the last 50 years
- Examine the epidemiology and etiology of syncope and assess prognosis
- Identify cardiac causes of syncope and risk of recurrence
- Describe the principals in the diagnostic workup of syncope
- Discuss current information in the management of syncope
- Discuss the common problems in clinical practice as it relates to thrombosis and the role of antithrombotic therapy
- Review current recommendations for anticoagulant bridging therapy
- Describe the appropriate clinical use of the newly approved anticoagulant agents
- Discuss the mechanisms of use and duration of antiplatelet therapy in the management of patients with coronary artery disease
- Discuss current information in the use of antithrombotic therapy
- Classify heart failure, its increasing prevalence and the ethical dilemmas clinicians face regarding end-of-life supportive care
- Recognize characteristics of Class IV Stage D congestive heart failure
- Explain ethical features of whether a patient should consider transition from further life-saving technical options to supportive care, the need for ancillary services, and discrimination between home health support services and hospice
- Discuss current information in the management of heart failure and end-of-life care

OPTIMAL SESSIONS
- Listen to normal, unique and distinct heart sounds that provide auditory data regarding the condition of the heart
- Illustrate clinical case studies in cardiology
