Typically four faculty members from each of the health sciences programs will be accepted for participation in SITE. Additional faculty and residents will be accepted as space permits. While targeted to new faculty members, faculty with teaching experience who are interested in expanding their teaching skills may also participate. Participants are expected to continue participation after SITE. This includes two lunch meetings over one academic year. These activities extend the mission of SITE by providing professional development activities and mentorship for educational scholarship, such as a curriculum development initiative or projects suitable for presentation and publication.

Applicants to the SITE Program should submit the following:
1. Cover letter expressing your interest in the program. Please address the following questions: Why are you interested in the SITE program? What will you contribute to the experience? How do you envision participation in the program will improve your teaching?
2. One-page proposal for a scholarly project you will initiate during the program. Project examples include a plan to develop a new course/curriculum; a proposal for a teaching or assessment innovation; or a small-scale research study related to some aspect of your teaching.
3. Copy of your CV.
4. Letter of support from your Department or Program Chair.

Important Dates:
