Policies and Procedures

PURPOSE

GME Programs, in partnership with Creighton University, must design an effective program structure that is configured to provide residents with educational and clinical experience opportunities, as well as reasonable opportunities for rest and personal activities.

SCOPE

This policy applies to all Creighton University Endocrinology Fellows.

POLICY

Clinical and Education Work Hours

The schedule has been arranged to ensure reasonable work hours for trainees. Fellows may not exceed 80 hours per week of in-house duty averaged over a four-week period. There is no in-house call requirement for endocrinology. Duty hours, including those hours worked returning to the hospital on call, are monitored with frequent surveys.

Fellows track duty hours via the New Innovation electronic system and are required to report the circumstances for violations of duty hours. As a result, monitoring for fatigue can be prioritized for that fellow. If a fellow is too fatigued to complete assigned duties due to the on-call work load, he/she should communicate with the program director about leaving early and having another trainee assigned to the clinical duties.

In most circumstances, fellows will have at least eight hours away from the hospital between scheduled duty periods. If medical necessity or educational opportunity result in a breach of the eight-hour duty-free time, the hours worked should be forwarded to the program director.

In case of fatigue, fellow will follow the fatigue management guideline from the GME office.
